Artemide's IN-EI ISSEY MIYAKE is a collection of suspended, table and floor lamps; the shadows cast by the lamps are combined with subtle, beautiful nuances of light. The unique folds creating the shapes and the durability of the shades are the result of an innovative technology developed by Issey Miyake. Thanks to a recycled material featuring a higher transparency to light than paper, the plasticity of the lampshades is perfectly achieved without need for internal structures: the process of folding actually creates volumes which are solid enough to be easily remodelled. When not in use, the lamps can be folded and stored. "I'm particularly proud of this collaboration," says Ernesto Gismondi. "Issey Miyake devotes his exceptional artistic talents to a research focused on the needs and lives of the individuals: the same commitment can be seen in The Human Light, Artemide's leading philosophy. So our values and vision were in tune with Issey Miyake from the very beginning." IN-EI it means "shadow, shading, nuance" in Japanese; the project started in 2010 at the Miyake Design Studio when Jun Mitani created a new process using a computer software based on 3D geometric formulae. "132 5. ISSEY MIYAKE" is a clever method of creating clothing and represents a successful example of what can be achieved through thorough research into textiles and technology. The IN-EI project uses a special fabric that can be folded to create and retain three-dimensional shapes. IN-EI ISSEY MIYAKE was created through the partnership between Artemide lighting know-how and Reality Lab. innovative approach to materials and design.
